

Amendments to the Claims:

Claims 1-19 (canceled)

Claim 20 (new) Headgear and electronics in combination comprising: a hat formed from a brim interconnected to a cap, said brim having a top area, said cap having a top section, said cap having a sweatband section, said brim having internal electrical components therein, said cap having internal electrical components therein, said top area having activation means for activating said internal electrical components, said cap including adjustment means for variably adjusting the size of said cap, said hat further including an earpiece electrically interconnected to a speaker and receiver, said earpiece is further attached via a hinge mechanism, said earpiece may be conveniently folded into a concealed position within said hat, said activation means includes at least one keyboard, said activation means includes at least an on/off switch, said brim further includes at least one display panel thereon, said electrical components including a solar battery charger and wafer batteries, said hat further includes a storage compartment for containment of a backup battery, said brim includes at least one hinge so as to allow said brim to be flexible, said at least one hinge further protects said electronics from being broken, and said internal electrical components are housed within a container that is removably attached onto said hat, whereby said internal electrical components can be easily removed from said hat for washing purposes.

Claim 22 (new) The headgear and electronics in combination of claim 21 wherein said internal components when activated by said activation means function as either a cell phone, a computer, a calculator, a CD player, a mini-disc player, a palm pilot, or a combination thereof.